Death Comes To Minnie Handorf Of Marley

Miss Minnie Handorf, 60 years old, a native of Worth and a resident of Marley most of her life, died April 10 while in the Silver Cross hospital following a long illness. She was born March 19, 1882 in Worth and moved with her parents to the farm west of Marley when she was two years old. She lived on the farm and in Marley, the rest of her life. She is survived by her father, Mr. John Handorf Sr., one sister, Mrs. Ida Lahmann, two brothers John Handorf, Jr., and Carl. There are six nieces and five nephews. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. in the Sonntag funeral home in Joliet with burial in Hadley cemetery.

Miss Minnie was vitally interested in the life of her community and a loyal member of the Marley church. Her presence will be missed from among us, but in the words of Robt. Louis Stevenson—

She is not dead, this friend: not dead, But on some road, by mortals tread, Got some few trifling steps ahead, And nearer to the end: So that you too once past the bend, Shall meet again, as face to face, this Friend you fancy dead. Push gaily on, brave heart; the while You travel forward, mile by mile She lingers with a backward smile, Till you can overtake; And strains her eyes to search her wake, Or whistles as she sees you thru the Brake, And waits by a stile.

Meets With Painful and Peculiar Accident

While Mrs. Frank Vally of New Lenox was going down her basement steps in her home Monday, to replenish her supply of varnish which she had in a coffee can, she slipped and fell all the way down the steps with her thumb of her left hand in the empty can. By the complete weight of her body on the thumb in the can, it caused her thumb to be cut to the bone.

She was home alone and after getting up from the fall and calling help she was rushed to Silver Cross hospital where she was on the operating table two hours having the thumb sewed back in its right place again. After several days in the hospital, Mrs. Vally is at her home, doing as well as can be expected.

Air Rifle Bullet Fired Thru Door Cappel Home

Stray shots evidently fired by young boys caused damage and injuries last Saturday morning. The first report came from the residence of Albert Cappel on Neithammer Avenue where a 22 air rifle bullet crashed through the kitchen door and landed in the kitchen wall. Luckily no one was injured. Following this shot a search was made of the neighborhood but no one was found carrying a gun. So just who was to blame for this stray shot is not known.

A few hours later C. W. Mishke of Rock Island, a cook for an extra gang located at Mokena was struck in the face by a B-B shot which narrowly missed the eye. The injured man was bleeding quite profusely and was given first aid medical treatment by Dr. E. G. McMahon the company physician for the Rock Island at Mokena. Later on Mr. Mishke went to his home in Rock Island.

A group of boys had been seen loitering around the Railroad tracks with guns and it is presumed one of them was responsible for this stray shot. Complaints were lodged with the Village authorities and they have issued a warning that it is unlawful to discharge fire arms within the village limits and that if any of these boys are caught on the streets with air rifles or B-B guns they will be arrested and the parents compelled to pay a fine. It is too bad that the parents allow youngsters to run around the village firing these guns at random without regard to any damage or injury they might cause.

Parents are more to blame for this kind of a condition than are the boys. But if parents are made to pay a stiff fine for the trouble their youngsters get into it might teach them a lesson.

U. S. Requests Citizens' Aid In Scrap Hunt

Nation Searches Junk Piles For Vital War Needs.

By ROBERT W. McSHANE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Help win the war by getting in the scrap!

With this plea, Uncle Sam is enlisting the aid of every man, woman and child in the nation's war effort.

This new battle cry isn't a call to arms. Rather, it's an urgent plea to salvage every available scrap of metal, paper, old rags and rubber. That old stove in your basement, the rusty, ancient binder near the machine shed, the bundle of papers in the attic—all can be used to defeat the Axis. In fact, almost every unused item or piece of equipment around the home or farm can be used with telling effect in the war against the totalitarian powers.

With the launching of the salvage program, officials of the War Production board and representatives of industry pointed out that a critical shortage of scrap metal now exists in the United States. Unless more scrap is forthcoming at once, war production will slow down immeasurably. Because of this shortage, the war likely will be prolonged by months, even years.

Salvage for Victory.

"Under normal conditions," a WPB representative pointed out, "the steel industry, for instance, depends upon scrap for approximately one-third of its supply of raw material. With the vast expansion of our armament program, including the aid that we must continue to send to Britain, Russia and China, it is obvious that the salvaging of metals heretofore wasted or destroyed must be augmented to a tremendous degree. In frequent instances recently, steel mills have been threatened with shut down for lack of scrap."

As this is being written, one of the nation's largest steel mills reported only enough scrap metal on hand for two days' production. This is less than one-tenth of the company's normal supply.

The importance of general salvage is emphasized by the bureau of industrial conservation, officials of which point out that the success of the "Salvage for Victory" program will have a profound bearing on the outcome of the war.

According to bureau figures, waste materials have supplied 50 per cent of the raw materials for the steel industry, from 20 to 25 per cent for the manufacturers of aluminum and a large proportion for many other essential materials.

Guns Versus Automobiles.

For every automobile that isn't manufactured in 1942, we will have saved enough zinc and copper to make brass for 2,400 cartridge cases for .30 caliber ammunition; enough nickel to make 100 pounds of nickel steel for armor plate, projectiles, and armor piercing bullets; enough tin to coat 1,000 cans in which we put food for our soldiers and sailors. This is only a small part of the critical material which has been made available to war industry through the stoppage of automobile production.

Disposal of old papers, in a manner both patriotic and profitable, is made easy through use of this housewife's paper baler. The baler, which holds 25 pounds, is equipped with a spool for cord and a razor blade holder.

Winning the War With Waste

Enough steel and rubber go into a single 27-ton medium tank to make 24 automobiles.

The steel in the hull of a heavy cruiser totals 6,635 tons. In a 35,000-ton battleship, 18,000 tons are needed.

The shells turned out by army ordnance plants are packed in 30,000 tons of paper board each month.

Scrappy Party Ends With Row

Patriotic duty was mixed with pleasure recently when Mr. and Mrs. William Coburn gave a party at their home in Boston, Mass. Party invitations requested each person to bring at least 25 pounds of scrap. Mr. Coburn views the potential guns contributed by the guests while Mrs. Coburn tries out a rowing machine donated by Gov. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts.

Government figures disclose that there is an enormous pile of scrap iron and steel on the six million farms throughout the nation. The estimates run from 1½ million tons to 3½ million tons—more than enough, when combined with other materials, to build twice as many battleships as there are in all the navies of the world today.

The British ministry of supply estimates that one ton of waste paper will produce any one of the following: 1,500 shell containers, 47,000 boxes for .30 caliber ammunition, 71,000 dust covers for airplane engines or 36,000 practice targets. Only 28 per cent of the nation's paper is now recovered.

Leon Henderson, price administrator, has estimated that defense needs will require 50 per cent more waste paper in 1942 than was needed in 1941. A large share of this must come from family units.

Sixteen per cent of the 882,000 tons of rubber which the U. S. will use in 1942 must come from rubber reclaimed from old tires and other used rubber goods. To get this 141,120 tons of reclaimed rubber, wholesalers will need all the old tires and tubes, boots, shoes and garden hose the public can contribute.

Immediate Action Needed.

Even the lowly rag plays an important role in wartime. Every housewife knows how necessary cleaning rags are to her domestic duties. Uncle Sam's problem is the same—only it is magnified a few million times. Those are essential to war production plants, where they are used to keep machinery clean and in working order.

What can you do to help in the nation's salvage for victory program?

The answer lies in direct, immediate action. The scrap material lying idle around your home, around your farm and around your business place must be uncovered and turned over to war production. It must be done immediately. Shortages in critical material exist now. They must be met at once if America is to meet the war production schedule established by President Roosevelt. Industry can answer the present challenge to democracy—but only if every person co-operates to the fullest possible extent.

Every effort is being directed toward developing in the minds of the general public an understanding that the need for metals, paper, rubber and rags now cluttering up homes, shops and factories is a continuing need, and a demand that will increase rather than lessen.

Local salvage committees are functioning in every community throughout the nation. These committees will furnish complete lists of needed scrap materials to every interested person.

Farms Are Best Source.

Farms, the greatest single source of scrap material in the general salvage program, are expected to furnish thousands of tons of scrap metal in the form of obsolete machinery and tools, junked automobiles, old logging chains, wire fencing, old tires and tubes, obsolete motors and motor parts, wheelbarrows, rusted gears and the thousand and one things which find their way to the scrap heaps on almost every farm in the nation.

Farmers who are unable to haul their own scrap to the nearest salvage depot have merely to call the closest salvage committee (or the local county agent) and arrangements will be made to dispose of the material.

State salvage committees have recommended that any person who has an accumulation of scrap material, in whatever form it may be, call a nearby waste material or junk dealer, who will buy such material at current prices. Persons who have been in the habit of giving wastepaper, rags and scrap metals to charitable organizations, such as the Red Cross, are urged to continue that practice, since these organizations sell their collections promptly.

Small towns are becoming an increasingly important source of supply. Residents have been asked to collect such material as brass or iron beds, electrical equipment, kitchen utensils, picture frames, old metal ornaments, toys, coat hangers, old carpeting, blankets, fire-place equipment, old furnace parts, plumbing fixtures, radiators, automobile chains, license plates, garden tools, burlap bags, old rubber and all types of hardware, including door knobs, hinges, hooks, locks, springs, etc.

The lists furnished by local salvage committees are ample proof that almost everything found in a cellar, attic or back yard has a definite salvage value.

The War Production board looks upon every scrap metal pile as an unworked mine. Probably no other metal is in demand in such vast quantities as steel. It is needed not only for tanks, guns and planes, but also goes into the hulls of new merchant ships, into freight cars and new housing units and industrial plants. Already the WPB has acted

Don't forget to take that empty toothpaste or shaving cream tube with you to the store when you want a new supply. Customers are required to turn in some kind of collapsible tube for each new one purchased. The retailer who sells one without the proper exchange is liable to a maximum fine of $10,000 fine or a year's imprisonment.

to conserve the nation's supply of steel by ordering curtailment in the use of this essential metal in such civilian goods as refrigerators, washing machines and automobiles. However, the methods of saving steel at the source are not sufficient. Salvaging scrap iron and steel, known to be available in huge quantities everywhere, offers a rich vein of raw material, of which only the surface has been tapped.

Lead Is Vital Metal.

No metal is more directly associated with the production of weapons than is lead. It furnishes bullets for rifles and machine guns and is used in shrapnel and shells. Mechanical lead is indispensable for the construction of explosive plants while tetra-ethyl lead is essential for the high octane aviation gasoline which feeds our present-day 400-mile-an-hour fighting planes.

While emphasis has been placed on the salvage of steel, the disruption of supplies from abroad has made it imperative that the nation conserve every available pound of lead. The use of this vital metal has increased in direct proportion to the war effort. Lead, lying idle in shops, homes and automobile "graveyards," should be reclaimed and directed back into war production.

Zinc, too, is essential metal. Old wash pails and buckets, galvanized wire and tin roofings which are no longer in use can go directly into the production of propellers for battleships or into essential parts for tanks, trucks and a variety of other war machines.

One of the scarcest and most critically needed metals is copper. With an estimated shortage of thousands of tons of copper predicted for the coming year, government orders have restricted the use of this essential material almost exclusively to defense production.

Approximately 600,000 tons of the estimated supply which will be available next year will be imported, most of it from South America, and an disruption of this outside source would be a deadly blow to rearmament.

In 1941, approximately 34 per cent of the copper supply came from scrap. In 1942, it is plain that even this must be substantially augmented by an increase in the return of potential copper now lying unused in cellars, attics, and back yards, on farms and in shops and factories.

Japanese Successes Are Causing Adolf Some Worry . . . Deceased Admiral's Genius Now Admitted . . .

(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WASHINGTON.—There are increasing evidences that Adolf Hitler is a little bit worried about Japanese successes in the southwest Pacific. Not that Hitler is confiding to any of our sources what he thinks, but we do know what he is letting the German people be told, and it is not difficult, at times, to read between the lines when one knows that what is printed not only has government approval, but is government inspired.

There are two distinct possibilities which this line of thought might produce. One is an attempt by Germany to end the war before Japan gets a strangle hold on her new conquests.

Bear in mind here that the Nazis apparently—again judging from the comments the government of Berlin permits—are even more surprised at the extent of Japanese success than we are, which is saying quite a lot.

So the Nazis confidently expect, now, that Japan will wind up not only with all of the Dutch East Indies, but with Australia and New Zealand as well, not to mention India, Ceylon, Madagascar, Burma, and the Philippines. In fact the Germans are openly talking about South Africa.

Naturally, the Germans have no confidence in altruism on the part of the Japs. They know what happened in the last war, when Japan seized Shantung and kept it, not bothering to fight any more after she got what she wanted.

They know also about the former German islands which were mandated to Japan. They know the Japs have no thought of ever giving them back to Germany.

What Japan Will Do

More important, they know what Japan will do after the war with every bit of territory she is able to acquire, assuming Axis victory. Those markets will be closed to Germany, as to the rest of the world, just as Japan closed Manchukuo before this war began.

Now all this, though clear to the Nazis (they are protesting in their newspapers that of course Japan is not going to do this) is not at all in line with the German vision of the New Order. Germany does not want some of the most productive land in the world, and the largest supply of cheap labor in the world, exploited by a rival nation, and certainly Japan would be a very active rival for Germany after the war in the event of Axis victory.

So it is just possible that the thought may occur to Germany that if she can just keep most of what she has taken in Europe, and let the United Nations take care of Japan, it might be better for the Nazis in the long run.

This may sound absurd at first blush, but the Nazis, like the Japanese, look a long way ahead. They have no fear that, once the war is over, the much despised democracies will penalize themselves by continuing to be prepared for another war.

That, of course, is the fly in the ointment. Roosevelt and Churchill are not likely to accept any Nazi peace proposal, no matter what the terms.

Now Recognized Prophet Once Considered Naval 'Pest'

"I explained all this to Joe Daniels but he didn't hoist the idea aboard."

The speaker was the late Rear Admiral William F. Fullam. The time was February, 1921, just before Secretary of the Navy Joseph Daniels passed out of office along with Woodrow Wilson. The occasion was that Admiral Fullam had brought his "copy" into the Washington bureau of the old New York Tribune. The "copy" which was always a masterly editorial in support of a three-plan navy, but particularly stressing air power and submarines, was printed regularly in the Tribune under the nom de plume "Quarterdeck."

His rather long articles, packed with the same arguments time after time over a period of years, and larded with the admiral's picturesque expressions (he dated back to the sailing ship days) were unmistakable to anyone who had ever heard him talk. And that meant every naval officer he could make listen to him.

The plain truth is that he was regarded as a pest by most of the admirals who were running the navy.

The writer accompanied Admiral Fullam on several of the trips into the Atlantic, off the Virginia capes, when General Mitchell demonstrated what could be done in attacking ships by bomb-dropping planes.

We saw ships sunk by bombs—not just flimsy merchant ships, but war ships. On one of these trips an old German battleship was sunk by a bomb which did not hit her, but fell in the water right alongside!

Fortunes With, Love Then Flees To Divorce Court

Plight of Many Girls Who Thought They Married Men of Wealth.

NEW YORK.—A suit for annulment of marriage brought by a svelte strip-tease dancer against a scion of the enormously wealthy Thaw clan served to emphasize the plight of many girls who mistakenly believed they had married men of great fortunes.

In many cases, brides find their husbands haven't the money they (the brides) thought they had. In other cases the money is there, but the brides are unable to get an appreciable portion of it.

This newest instance falls into the second category. It concerns Crystal Ames, a slip of a girl, who up to a few months ago was gaily shedding her garments on burlesque stages.

From this role she stepped into that of becoming the wife of Harper William Thaw, nephew of Harry K. Thaw. Crystal said:

"He told me he was a millionaire and the son of a millionaire. I was won by his suave manner and his glib tongue. I, too, thought it was love at first sight."

Already Married.

Four months after their elopement to Elkton, Md., said the dancer she learned that Thaw already had a wife from whom he was not divorced.

Decision in her case is still pending, as it is in the case of 18-year-old Lenore Lemmon who eloped from a night club with Jacob L. ("Jackie") Webb, 26. Jackie is a great-grandson of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, who left one of the greatest fortunes in America.

She found her honeymoon interrupted by bailiffs hunting her spouse on the charge that he had cashed rubber checks at swank New York hotels.

The marital wrangling of Joseph Paterno Jr. and Beverly Parker Paterno kept lawyers and courts busy for months.

Beverly, seeking a separation, asked for $2,000 a month alimony. Joe, she reasoned, was the son of the late Joseph Paterno, whose money ran into millions. But the judge decided that $350 a month would be enough for her and their three-year-old son.

High Up In Society.

Charlotte Milburn Pickering Cheeseborough Wright comes from an impeccably social family. But Chottie herself is not wealthy and the wrecking of her first two marriages was, it was said, largely due to squabbles over money.

Both previous marriages were elopements, the first with Hugh Parker Pickering, a Chicago couturier; the second with Thomas P. Cheeseborough Jr., a magazine editor.

A young noblewoman who married the heir to a great fortune solely to get his money was denounced by a New York judge.

She was the Countess Marie Anne Wurmbrand-Stuppach of Vienna. Clendenin Ryan Jr., grandson of the late multi-millionaire, Thomas Fortune Ryan, met her, began a whirlwind courtship and married her in six weeks.

Soon after the ceremony he sued for an annulment on the ground of fraud.

Admires Fightin' Fools,

So He Joins Polish Army

HALIFAX.—Eddbert Walker, 39 years old, who hails from Tulsa, Okla., and likes fighting, can't carry on a conversation with his mates in the Polish army unit training here. But he can fight and they can fight and that's the only reason Eddbert is here.

Walker, half Irish and half Cherokee Indian, speaks Oklahoma English and nothing else. He joined the Polish army being reformed here because "I heard they were the fightingest fools in uniform."

He said he "lit out for good" from Oklahoma when he was 12 and hasn't returned since. He has been all over the world looking for fights and did some in various countries, including China, where he was head of a band of guerrillas for 30 months. "I never fought a German," Walker said, "but they probably aren't so tough."

So Recruit Keeps Date

With Pretty Redhead

NEW YORK.—When Richard Brennan, 17-year-old Brooklyn youth, makes a date with a pretty redhead he intends to keep it—war or no war.

Brennan volunteered at the navy recruiting service, was accepted and ordered to report the following day (Saturday) for active service.

"But I have a date with a beautiful redhead Saturday night," he protested to the recruiting officer.

"The Japs aren't going to wait for you," countered the recruiting officer.

"Neither will this gal," said Brennan.

"That's a good argument," remarked the recruiting officer.

Brennan and the strawberry blonde kept their Saturday night date.

At the Parting Goldwyn Sadly Disillusioned Author

This story is told by a man who is writing a new movie for Sam Goldwyn. One day the author met Goldwyn for the first time. He listened patiently while Goldwyn discussed the story, without accent or malaprop . . . "All those stories about Goldwynisms have been incorrect," he mused—while Goldwyn continued, still without accent, still using the correct words . . . "I'll write an article about Goldwyn and disprove those stories," the author vowed.

Then as the conference ended, Goldwyn led him to the door and said: "Now remember, you've an important job. In this enterprise you're the main clog."

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persisting headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

GHOST PLANE

By ARTHUR STRINGER

W.N.U. SERVICE

CHAPTER I

"Lindy's in!"

Cruger, at his desk, heard that cry from a ground-worker passing the open window. He smiled as he looked up from his time sheet. There was always a note of triumph in the call of the port boys when Lindy came in.

Cruger got up from his chair and crossed to the doorway, where the sunlight fell flat against the river slopes and proclaimed that spring had come again to the North Country. He stood there until he caught sight of his long-legged bush pilot swinging up from the landing dock.

Cruger went back to his desk and his figure-stripped time sheets as the long legs strode into what was overgenerously known as the Administration Building of Norland Airways. It was a place of plain boards and tar paper, with only the two poles of its radio antennae to crown it with any passing sense of dignity.

Slade, when he stepped into the map-hung office, again made Cruger think of a panther, but this time it was a panther in a cage. He seemed too big for the room.

"I'm glad you swung back early," said Cruger. "And I want to tell you, first crack out of the box, that we're going to take the crepe off the door."

"What does that mean?" questioned Slade.

Cruger, instead of answering, took up an official-looking envelope.

"Before we begin," he casually observed, "you'd better give this the once-over." He surrendered the envelope. "You know what it is?"

"I've an idea," said Slade, after inspecting the insignia.

"You're a quick jumper, aren't you?" retorted Cruger, his eye on the weathered young face that held a touch of discontent somewhere.

Slade's smile was wide yet non-committal.

"They yelp for flyers," he said, "and while they're yelping they turn me down." He got up from the safe and paced the narrow floor. "I must be bad."

Cruger's shrug was a condoning one.

"I'd say it's because you're good," he parried. "Good enough to be needed right here on this northern run. And those tin hats happen to know you hold a key position."

Slade turned on him.

"Did anyone in this outfit broadcast that, just to block my enlistment?" was his indignant demand.

Again Cruger shrugged.

"Who are we to interfere with the War Office? It ought to be big enough to make its own decisions."

But Slade didn't seem to hear him.

"They hot-air about wanting men who're hard-trained and resourceful. Well, I ought to ring in on that. I've kept more than one lemon-crate up when every law of aeronautics said it ought to be down."

"You're resourceful, all right," accented Cruger, "but you'd be in clink with a broken heart after two weeks of army rules."

"I'd learn," said Slade, "along with the other leathernecks."

"But they'd all move too slow for you," contended Cruger.

"That fight doesn't look slow to me. And I ought to be over there while the show's still on."

Cruger smiled the smile of a man with an extra shot in his locker.

"There was a time," he observed, "when bush flying seemed to stack pretty high with you."

"But if you can't get a little excitement in your day's work," Slade was saying, "you may as well give up. And you said, two weeks ago, we'd have to."

"Before we go into that," retorted Cruger, "we ought to check up on the all-round dullness of this bush run of ours. I s'pose there was no excitement in that mercy flight of yours to Murray Bay when you picked up those two frozen huskies? Or in finding your Flying Padre when he was stymied on Lac de Gras last winter with a busted propeller and a factor's wife in labor and delirious with flu all at once?"

Slade had his own memories of that event. But his smile remained morose.

"She had her baby in the plane, four feet behind me high-tailing it for the Fort Smith hospital," he acknowledged. "The nose-over on the lake ice gave Doc Morlock a bad arm, so his girl Lynn had to get busy."

The softened note on the name did not escape Cruger. But he let Slade go on.

"She knew what was needed, all right. When we were swinging over Lesser Slave Lake I heard that baby give its first squawk."

"But you saved two lives, didn't you? I suppose there wasn't any excitement in that?"

The shrill of the desk 'phone cut off Slade's impending response. And while Cruger answered the 'phone the man in the flyer's jacket walked to the window and looked out. Beyond the rough-boarded hangar and the landing docks he could see the friendly cluster of planes on the Snye.

"I'm glad you swung back early," said Cruger, "We're going to take the crepe off the door."

But what held his eye the longest was the smaller blue monoplane that looked faded and weathered and sadly the worse for wear. That, he knew, was the plane of the Flying Padre, the mercy-flighter and man of medicine who was sometimes known as the Grenfell of the Outer Gulf. And in it the Padre's daughter had gone along as pilot and helper. But never again, Slade remembered, would the clear-eyed Lynn Morlock take over the controls while her tired father held back the hand of Death two thousand feet above the lake-spangled Barrens. That, he surmised, was already a thing of the past.

Cruger, as he hung up his receiver, caught the passing look of raptness in the Viking blue eye.

"It's just about as big a game, Lindy, as a man could get into," he said out of the silence. "It's still as good as dog-fighting Messerschmitts. And we're both going to stay in it."

Slade swung about and faced his partner.

"That wasn't the tune you were singing two weeks ago."

Cruger's laugh was slightly defiant.

"They had us backed against the wall two weeks ago. I told you our shoeing was wearing thin and we couldn't buck the big companies another month. But Norland Airways is going to stay on the map."

Slade's face lost its diffidence.

Cruger's answer to that was not a direct one.

"We've both got all we own in this one-horse outfit and we can't afford to see it fold up. While you were out fighting head winds I've been in here doing a little fighting of my own. And I've just got my hands on a reconditioned Lockheed that'll give us a second air truck and release Abbott and his Postcraft for Winnipeg and Toronto passenger traffic. You'll like that Lockheed. They've slapped a fresh coat of aluminum paint on her."

"What'll she carry?" asked the flyer.

"A pay load of thirty thousand pounds a trip if she has to."

"Where'll you get your pay loads?" exacted Slade, remembering how war conditions had put a sag in sub-arctic mine work.

"I'm coming to that, stick-jiggler. The traffic's still there, if you're willing to go after it. And I've gone after it. I've under-bid the big outfits and corraled enough business to keep us busy till freeze-up. I've got Fort Norman oil and a new slice of the Yellowknife stuff for you. I've got a renewal of the Coppermine contract. And what's more, I've got a Santa Claus in spectacles who's handing over enough ready dough to keep our cash tank from running dry."

The Viking blue eye became more alert.

"Who's your Santa Claus?"

"He's a passenger," said Cruger, "you're going to fly into territory that'll make London look like a tea-room on a rainy afternoon."

Cruger sat back, apparently waiting for a question. But Slade, with his world to reorganize, merely walked to the window and looked out.

"You're flying," Cruger was saying, "into the Anawotot country."

Slade's turn, at that information, was quick.

"What nut's going into that wilderness?" he demanded.

"They go into some queer places, these days," observed the older man.

"But the Anawotot's as empty as Sahara. Why, the only human beings north of the Kasakana are two frost-bitten old quartz-pounders, two half-demented old derelicts who've been bushed for three years and would bump off if I didn't tote 'em in their flour and sawbilly."

"You're going well past the Kasakana this time," Cruger announced. "Into country you've never seen before."

"For what?" asked Slade.

Cruger took his time about answering.

"For swans' eggs, I understand."

Slade's sun-bleached brows came a little closer together.

"Just what does that mean?"

Again Cruger took his time.

"It means we've got a simple-minded naturalist out there, an ornithologist answering to the name of Frayne, who wants to be flown north so he can find the breeding ground of the trumpeter swan. I never saw a trumpeter swan. Did you?"

Slade stood thoughtful a moment.

"Yes, I saw a trumpeter, only last spring. I played tag with him over Lac la Martre. He must have had a wing-stretch of nine or ten feet."

"I'd call that quite a stretch," said the man at the desk.

"You're telling me?"

"They may be impressive," said Cruger, as he opened a desk drawer, "but from what I can gather they're dying off. And this man Frayne wants to sleuth out their nesting quarters before they follow the dodo and disappear for good."

"And he's going in to the Anawotot alone?"

Slade's brow-pucker seemed one of incredulity.

"No, he's taking an over-sized blond named Karnell along with him."

"A blond?" croaked Slade. "You don't mean a skirt?"

"Anything but. This blond is all male. He's square-headed and gorilla-jawed and looks like something that's been worked on by a snarling iron."

Slade found the picture unpalatable.

"But who's your friend Frayne?" he persisted with a shrug of distaste. "Where does he come from? And why does he pick on us?"

"That's neither your problem nor mine. But he's the Norland's friend, all right. He may be a simple-minded crank. But he's so well heeled that money doesn't seem to mean much. And at this stage of the game we're going to handle a Christmas present like that with care."

Slade nodded his understanding.

"But he must have a screw loose somewhere," maintained the younger man, "or he wouldn't be heading for what he's sure to get in that Anawotot country."

"You needn't lose sleep over that," contended Cruger. "He may be after birds' eggs, but he seems to have a working knowledge of sub-arctic conditions. I didn't find him much of a talker, but I stumbled on the fact he'd been trophy-hunting in the Himalayas last winter. And the winter before he hunted the snow leopard in Siberia and Tibet."

"Then I suppose he's English," said Slade. "One of those English big-game guys who go around with a monocle and a tin bathtub."

"He's got equipment, all right," conceded Cruger. "And he's paying us quite handsomely for flying it in."

GROWING TENSION WITH FALSE LEADERS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 11:37-48, 52-54.
GOLDEN TEXT—He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth.—Luke 11:23.

Opposition to Christ and to Christian teaching has come down through the centuries practically unchanged. Hence, we find in Christ's dealings with the enemies of His day helpful indication of what may be done in our time.

It is sad to note that the chief opposition came from those who professed to be religious leaders. It is expected that the world, the flesh, and the devil should fight God's truth, but one might expect better of those who profess His name. The difficulty is that there is only profession, with no real life.

I. Hypocrisy Unmasked (vv. 37-44).

The Pharisees professed great interest in the observance of religious laws, but their concern was for the outward appearance, while God judges the heart. First we note a false profession of cleanliness. Christ came to the Pharisees' table with clean hands, but He had not observed all their ceremonial washings. When rebuked He struck home with terrific force at the heart of the whole matter (v. 39); namely, that inward filthiness of heart which often makes folk meticulous about outward cleansing. This leads to a substitution of technical observance of the letter of the law that ignores love and judgment (v. 42), which are so precious to God. There can be a dead, dry, and technical orthodoxy which entirely misses the point.

But worst of all is the covering up of spiritual death (v. 44). Sometimes we speak of those who are "dead and don't know it," and that may actually be true spiritually. There may be death within and yet a brave and sometimes self-deluding outward show of life.

II. Theological Deadness Condemned (vv. 45-52).

The lawyers of that day were those learned in the Mosaic law, hence were really the teachers of theology and ethics. They came under the rebuke of Christ as He pronounced three "woes" upon them. First, they were guilty of heaping upon others burdensome requirements which they did not themselves keep, and which they did not help the people to keep. There are such teachers today who set up standards they do not themselves observe, a sort of signpost pointing the right way, while they are not themselves going that way. Then there are those who present high ethical standards without the spiritual dynamic needed to live up to them. To tell a man to be good without telling him of the Saviour who can make him good is mockery.

Then, those of Christ's day were condemned for hating God's witnesses. They were willing to build sepulchers for the dead prophets (killed by their fathers), but were not willing to hear the living prophets. How true to life that is! The very ones who hate and hinder those who are preaching God's Word, speak and sing smoothly of the faith of our fathers, and claim as their own the witnesses of a past day.

Christ also pointed out that while professing to interpret the law they obscured its meaning. They threw away the key to knowledge so that neither they nor their people could learn—and yet they continued to teach. Have not the false teachers of our day done likewise? They deny the integrity and authority of the only infallible Word—the Bible; they reject the deity of our Saviour, Christ, and yet they talk about being Christians and preachers of the truth. Woe be unto them in the day of God's judgment and wrath!

What happens when such men are condemned or unmasked? We find—

III. Enmity Intensified (vv. 53, 54).

The scribes and Pharisees had two approaches: they sought vehemently to provoke Him to overspeak, and they craftily laid in wait for Him. The writer of these notes has seen both methods at work in our day. Liberals, or modernists as they are called, profess for the most part to a suave courtesy which makes them speak smoothly and gently about the conservative and orthodox believer or teacher; but if one only has eyes to see, there is often the strong and cruel hand of iron hidden under the velvet glove.

Whatever may be the approach, be assured of this—every effort to reveal false teaching in its true light, or to deal with hypocrisy in spiritual things will bring intensified opposition. Christ took it—we too can take it in His name and for His sake.

Praise the Lord

I will greatly praise the Lord with my mouth; yea, I will praise him among the multitude. For he shall stand at the right hand of the poor, to save him from those who condemn his soul.—Psalm 109:30-31.

Tank Is Their Ocean

A remarkable attempt to reproduce ocean conditions and life on a comparatively small scale has been made near St. Augustine, Fla. Two huge tanks which are the main features of Marineland are really oceans in miniature peopled by 85,000 species of aquatic creatures just as they are found in their natural surroundings. Enclosed galleries run at different levels around the tanks, and the visitor can sit comfortably in a chair and look through portholes into the lighted interior in much the same way as he would look upon the lighted screen at a cinema.

Fast Driving

A recent study, made to determine the cost of operating an automobile at a low and a high speed, revealed that, when two identical cars are driven over the same 1,000-mile course, one at 25 and the other at 65 miles an hour, the latter consumes 60 per cent more gasoline and 800 per cent more oil and causes 700 per cent more wear on the tires.

ILLINI GIRLS STATE

The 1942 session of Illini Girls State, sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, Department of Ill., will be held on the campus of MacMurray college, Jacksonville, from Wednesday, June 24 to Wednesday, July 1st.

Everywhere, girls who have attended 1940 and 1941 sessions of Illini Girls State are interested in seeing the accomplishments of their friends and younger sisters as this great project in training future citizens is carried forward. Girls who have been privileged to attend before, speak in glowing terms of the program. Girls who look forward longingly to the time when they may be selected to attend are sincerely eager. To the women of the Auxiliary who make this type of training possible, much the same feeling is existent. They, too, are anxiously awaiting the 1942 session. They are doing everything possible to make this year's program as complete and as beneficial as those of the past two years.

Educational activity, recreation, and a well rounded week of entertainment awaits each girl who is selected to attend 1942 Illini Girls State. Mrs. Trudie Swisher, who has charge of Illini Girls State program for Tinley Park unit, American Legion Auxiliary will be glad to furnish information on request.

With current national and international conditions such as they are, a program of defense activity is also being planned, that the girls may take home an added knowledge of those things which are a necessity, in 1942. Mrs. Wm. A. Tennemann of Deerfield is serving the American Legion Auxiliary this year as general chairman of Illini Girls State Commission, and Mrs. Wm. Glenn Suthers of Chicago, continues to serve as Dean of Illini Girls State.

AM. LEGION AUXILIARY NEWS
The Aux. unit 615 met at the home of Mrs. Swisher April 10th. "What does the Declaration of Independence Embrace" was explained by a number of questions and answers by Mrs. John E. Swisher, Americanism chairman. More questions with their answers will be taken up at our next business meeting.

Mrs. Rowden, Rehabilitation chairman will go to Oak Forest Dug out some day next week and take a dinner for them. A supply of carpet rags was sent to Anna Hospital. The members voted to make a contribution toward the Mobile Blood unit.

Mrs. Swisher sent in a contribution to the County Poppy poem contest. The poems were to embrace the history of the poppy, or memory flower as it may rightly be called. Mrs. Swisher titled her poem, "Just Poppies."

Poppy Day is drawing near, and Mrs. Felton our chairman gave an outline of her plans for that day. Follow up the articles which will appear in the paper each week and they will give you a clearer understanding of this project, and why it is so important that it be a success this year more than ever before. The following letter was received from the Village Board: "At the regular village meeting of April 6, 1942, your organization was granted permission to hold a tag day May 23rd, 1942."

The Past Presidents will hold their regular meeting Monday, April 20th at the home of Mrs. Erna Wallin.

At our next meeting April 24, all the new members will be initiated. Guests for the evening will be our junior members, and all the past presidents, as this will be past presidents night. Each president in turn may bring a guest. Our district Director has also been invited to attend.

The Unit is planning on having a free movie show the early part of May, date to be announced later.

Citizens Service Committee:

Dear Lulu, Sec.

Here is Sunday night and I sit in the Barracks among a bunch of fellows arguing how Aircraft Engines work, a noisy radio, weather in a very bad state and I can't quite decide what I should do for about unpet things loom up in front of me yet I lack the initiative to start moving.

Do you know, I would like to know how the paper got me in the station hospital because I haven't been near one as yet. They say we get fed better and also received a few extra nickels for being there. But still that isn't enough of an attraction (damn those fellows and their engines.

I want to thank all you folks who are backing us fellows and the Tinley Park Times is swell in bringing the town right here in my little sanctum.

By the way I cut my whiskers off with a Gillette razor, government style, and sometimes while shaving at night they turn the lights off in the midst of my job, so occasionally I shave on installments by finishing in the morning.

Man that little town has men in the service all over the Continent and even out in the water. I hope that our duty will be something for you folks to be proud of.

Happy Easter all.

Citizens Service Committee,

Dear Friends:

I received your letter some time ago, and was sure glad to hear from the folks back in Tinley Park. I get the Tinley Park Times every week and sure enjoy reading it.

I also am glad to hear that the Citizens of Tinley Park have formed a Citizens Service Committee, to keep in touch with the men that left Tinley Park and are now in the service. Thanks for the nice Kit you sent. I use Gillette razor blades. I was at Camp Grant, Illinois for one week, my reception center. I was shipped to Camp Roberts, California for my 13 weeks basic training.

From there they transferred me to Fort Tennis, Washington. I was 650 miles from San Francisco, California on a boat on my way to the Philippine Islands December 7th, but turned back that day when we heard about Pearl Harbor. We are all set to go again. We are leaving to go across I don't know where or when, but we are leaving in a week or less. Well so long for now.

Sincerely,

Sam Greco

Dear Friends:

Received the kit and can make very good use of it, thanks a million. Just received the Times and have it here as I write. The weather, that awful weather the other lads are having, Teh, teh. Here I am in a fine building high on a hill top with rich green lawns sweeping away into a little valley, and the sun beams have been beaming down for the past month. Johnnie Lehman with that nasty snow and Fulton with those fierce winds and the other lads in their little mud holes, teh, teh, I'm filled with pity. Well now that I've got that off, I'm sure the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce will welcome me next time.

Pvt. Harms letter seemed to have a sombre touch to it, cheer up Orville, things could be worse, just think how it would be if you were here in the 56th C. A. with me. Whoole! yep things could be a lot worse. Well Emory Congrats and lots of luck with that Sergeants rating. Today is one day we all have in common, payday. And as usual there's that little card game and I can hear the lads in the short end of the game, how they do wail. Well after all's said and done everybody seems to be in good health regardless where they're at. I myself have been disgustingly healthy, haven't even been near the Bone Crusher which will ever be a source of wonder to me. Well Citizens, there isn't anything I need but thanks anyway. By the way your last letter was addressed incorrect, the letter was B5, 6 C. A. and as there is a 6 C. A. out here it was delayed some time. The correct address is Pvt. Kenneth V. Devlin, Regimental Hdq. Battery, 56th C. A., Fort Barry, Calif. So long, see you all in a few years.

Instruction sheets. Practically every electric appliance is accompanied by an instruction sheet or tag, printed by the manufacturer. Don't throw it away—read it carefully. Suggestion: attach a small bulletin board to your kitchen wall, and pin up all instruction sheets on it.

2. Cleaning. Electric motors wear better if they are kept clean. Wipe dust and grit off the exposed parts of your appliance motors with a soft, dry cloth.

3. Keeping dry. Never allow irons, toasters, space heaters, waffle irons, or other appliances with heating elements to get wet. They may be damaged by water. Clean with dry cloth.

4. Lubrication. Electric motors should be lubricated every six months. Use six drops of light oil in each oil hole (less for small appliance motors). If motor has grease cups, use light grease, or vaseline thinned with light oil.

5. Never put off a repair! If you think an appliance may need adjustment or repair, call a service man at once. A skilful twist of his wrench may prevent a costly overhauling later.

5 ways to make your electric appliances last longer

Now that all of us are trying to get the most out of the things we own, it is wise to remember that the electric aids in our homes were built to last. If we don't mistreat them, if we give them a reasonable amount of care, they will respond by continuing to perform their time-saving tasks through the uncertain period ahead.

Here are five simple ways to make electric appliances last longer. Tear this out of your paper—let the whole family study it—save it for reference. Faithfully carry out these five suggestions in your home, and be confident that you are adding months and years to the lives of your electric servants.

FREE—For many more valuable tips, write or inquire at your Public Service Store for the booklet, "How to Get the Most from Your Electric Service". No obligation.

Good Neighbors!

CONSERVING vital materials for the big job of winning the war has necessitated certain Government restrictions on telephone equipment. This will have little effect on present subscribers, but extension telephones and replacement of present instruments will not be possible. In some cases, we may have to offer only party line service in the home. Naturally, we would like to provide individual service to all who request it. But, with copper, nickel, lead, steel, zinc and rubber essential for America's "all-out" effort, we cannot get sufficient new equipment for all civilian installations, and have to stretch existing facilities just as far as they will reach. Whether it's a party or individual line, you get the same good, fast telephone service. But a party line requires thoughtful consideration of the neighbor who shares it with you. By using your telephone as often as you wish, but by giving the other fellow a "break," we Americans will still have the best telephone service in the world.

News About Mud And Snow Tires

Frank M. Bray of the Office of Price Administration Local Will County Rationing Board No. 99, states that of interest to the farmer is a release by the OPA with reference to the use of "Mud and Snow Tires" on farm equipment. Many users wish to replace them with regular tires during the summer months but the regulations do not permit this. Since rotation of tires from wheel to wheel is important in extending the life of tires and this practice should be used by all.

All four year High schools in the county will be used for registration of all trade users of sugar. This will include bakers, grocers, soft drink and candy manufacturers and institutions such as hospitals orphanages and convents.

This registration will be made on April 28th and 29th. The schools, Wilmington, Peotone, Beecher, Joliet, Crete, Plainfield, Lockport and Braidwood.

Dealers in used tires who have been profiteering are subject to a surprise as the Second War Powers Act provides a maximum penalty of $10,000 fine and one year imprisonment for violation of the regulations.

Maximum prices have been established for used tires and the Department of Justice has adopted a plan for investigation and criminal prosecution for violators. Anyone having knowledge of such violations should write Office of Price Administration, 188 W. Randolph St., Chicago.

Retailers of Lumber and Coal

Tinley Park

Orland Park

TO ALL COAL CONSUMERS:

April 15, 1942.

We want to thank you for the splendid business you have given us. We appreciate it--and we have tried hard to serve you well.

As a coal consumer, we feel you should know about how the war is affecting (and will affect) the deliveries of coal by the railroads.

There's plenty of coal, but the job of the mines is to get it to us, so that we can get it to you.

The movement of war supplies, materials, shells, guns, troops and war equipment comes ahead of everything else. None of us would want it any other way.

But war needs DO take a lot of coal cars and that means fewer cars for coal. The condition is serious now and will become far more so as war production gets underway.

We advise you to fill your coal bin at once--not only to be sure that you have coal for next winter, but also to make more railroad cars available to move war materials next fall.

The government asks people to store coal NOW. It's the one item you are urged to 'hoard' as a patriotic duty.

Will you phone us today so that we can talk it over?

Cordially yours,

I. N. R. BEATTY LUMBER COMPANY

Cool and Decorative—Salad-Muffin Luncheon
(See Recipes Below)

Spring Luncheons

As spring spreads its fragrance and gaiety once more across the days, do your moods turn to thoughts of exquisite, gracious luncheons? Yes, to be sure, they do. You get lovely visions of picture-plate luncheons, crispy green salads, tiny, moist sandwiches, the tinkle of china on cool, crisply laundered cloths, centerpieces of delicate flowers.

But this year's luncheons are different from last year's. The plates are pictures to behold, true, but the menus are kind to purse strings and food shortages.

A bowl of colorful greens, curly endive, crisp lettuce, tossed together with grapefruit and orange sections with red slivers of strawberries are perfect with these muffins and all you would want for luncheon:

Molasses Nut Muffins.
(Makes 24 small or 18 large)
3 tablespoons butter
¼ cup sugar
1 egg
1½ cups flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 cup chopped Brazil nuts
¾ cup milk
½ cup pure, dark molasses

Cream butter, stir in sugar gradually and cream together. Stir in well-beaten egg and blend. Mix and sift flour with spices, salt, soda and baking powder, then mix in Brazil nuts. Add alternately with milk and molasses to the first mixture. Bake in well-greased muffin pans in moderate (350-degree) oven 25 minutes. You can have a veritable smorgasbord on your main luncheon plate if you carry out the general idea by serving several different kinds of salads in frilly lettuce cups. Pick out some combinations you like best from these ideas here:

*Chicken Salad.

(Serves 8)
2 cups diced, cooked chicken
1 cup finely chopped celery
1 cup halved, seeded grapes
½ cup toasted pecans
½ cup mayonnaise

Combine all ingredients lightly. Chill, add mayonnaise and toss lightly together.

*Fruit Salad.

(Serves 8)
4 thick slices grapefruit
4 thick slices oranges
4 slices pineapple
8 whole apricots
1 small package cream cheese

Pare oranges and grapefruit. Cut into slices. Cut pineapple, oranges and grapefruit slices into halves. Arrange in a fan shape on curly endive or lettuce. Stuff apricots with cream cheese and place at lower edge of the fan.

Lynn Says:

The Score Card: Latest reports reaching me assure us that: we have enough black pepper and most spices for at least two years. Coffee and cocoa supplies are adequate from South America, and tea stocks are still good.

Domestic fats and oils will have to replace imported palm and coconut oils used for frying fats, soaps and oleomargarines, and homemakers must conserve all soaps and frying fats carefully.

Tin will be available for canning foods that cannot be preserved in other ways, but you will be wise homemakers if you learn to use dried fruits properly, and can from your own defense gardens this summer. Be kind to your kitchen equipment and gadgets made out of tin, for there will be no more after that is used.

Pineapple is still being planted and shipped to the mainland, and no serious shortage is yet noticeable.

This Week's Menu

Guest Luncheon
Assorted Salad Plate:
*Chicken Salad
*Fruit Salad
*Egg Salad in Tomato Cups
*Molasses-Nut Muffins or
*Cheese Rings
Coffee or Tea
*Recipes Given.

*Egg Salad in Tomato Cups.

(Serves 4)
4 medium sized tomatoes
1 package cream cheese
1 tablespoon finely chopped green onion
2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
½ medium sized cucumber, chopped
3 hard cooked eggs, chopped
¼ cup mayonnaise

Wash tomatoes, peel. Slice off top, and scoop out the center. Toss the other ingredients lightly together and fill the tomato cups. Chill well and serve on lettuce.

All three of the salads given can be served on one individual platter. Arrange them attractively, a scoop of the chicken salad, a fan of fruit salad, and then the tomato cups. Your platter is complete for a luncheon and a very pretty sight to behold! A hot muffin to accompany and a fragrant cup of tea or coffee completes the luncheon.

On the other hand, if you prefer salad bowls which the guests will serve themselves, here are ideas:

Greens: chunks of lettuce, watercress, slivered green onions, radishes.

Oranges: Use sections on a bed of curly endive or curly garden lettuce, with raspberries or strawberries for color.

Vegetables: Cooked green beans in lengthwise slices, carrots, raw or cooked, in slivers, cooked limas, chopped ham.

Fruits: Beds of lettuce, lengthwise slices of bananas, berries in season, cheese balls dipped in chopped nuts.

Dressing makes an important addition to salad, and many times this is left to your own preference.

or, if you like, have the choice of two permitted for your guests. Save sugar in the little ways, is our motto, so here is one way to do it. This dressing uses molasses for sweetness.

Piquant French Dressing.

½ cup salad
½ cup vinegar
¼ cup chili sauce
¼ cup pure, dark molasses
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon onion, grated

Mix all ingredients together and beat thoroughly.

When you invite your friends over for salad and rolls for these luncheons, this may seem like so little, but it's guaranteed to make a hit if you do the little details up right. Have the salads crisp and cool and well blended. If having rolls, these should be piping hot for contrast. If you don't feel inspired to make rolls, then do other things like getting ready-made rolls and pretty them up:

Toasted Long Rolls: Split, butter and sprinkle with grated cheese. Pop into the oven until cheese melts. Serve hot.

Cheese Rings: Use day-old bread and cut rings with a doughnut cutter. Brush with butter or salad oil, dip in cheese, and bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven until golden brown.

Orange Biscuits: Add grated rind of orange to a baking powder biscuit recipe. Roll and cut. Dip a cube of sugar in orange juice and press into top of each biscuit. Bake in a hot oven 12 to 15 minutes.

Lynn Chambers will be happy to give you advice on your luncheon or salad problems. Write to her at Western Newspaper Union, 210 South Desplains Street, Chicago, Illinois. Please enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply.

SAVING TIRE WEAR

"Anybody who drives more than 40 miles an hour is a slacker."—Mr. Henderson in his appeal for rubber saving.

True, but the average man has become so accustomed to moving fast that he unconsciously gets into the upper speedometer brackets. Only today we were riding to town with Elmer Twitchell, a fiery exponent of cutting down speed to save tires.

"Mr. Henderson is dead right," snapped Mr. Twitchell. "This is no joking matter. Tires must be saved and it can only be done by driving with more care."

(He was doing about 28 now.)

"I can't understand the mental processes of the American who reads all about the rubber situation, knows how speed shortens the life of tires and yet keeps on driving as he always did. It is shameful."

(We noticed the speedometer now showed 32.)

"We're in a great war. Our country needs every ounce of rubber it can get. There are no more new tires to be had. Everybody ought to know without being told, that it is impossible to conserve tires and not reduce driving speed at all times. Yet we find ignorant, stupid fellows driving as if nothing had happened."

(He has now got the old bus up to 38.)

"Why do people take these warnings from government agencies so lightly? Something should be done to make them obey the suggestions. There is no place in American life today for the speed nut who just won't change his habits."

(He was now doing about 42.)

"I favor backing up Henderson," went on Mr. Twitchell, with deep agitation. "Every community should back him up. The police should be more vigorous. No halfway measures should be shown. I am for the arrest and punishment of every short-sighted, pig-headed, self-satisfied son of a sea cook who is too blankety blank thick to see his responsibilities to do his full duty."

(He was now doing 50.)

"There oughta be a law! Why should anybody be unwilling to co-operate with the government? Why should—"

We nudged him and pointed to the speedometer which had begun climbing toward 55.

Elmer reddened and took his foot off the accelerator.

"Sunny!" he said guiltily. "Just a habit, I guess. Now, as I was saying . . ."

THE COMMUNIQUE

A terrific crash was heard . . . it was followed by a sound of wood-work crashing . . . presently the whole window came out of the house, as the form of Elmer Twitchell was flung through it.

"What's the matter?" we asked, picking Elmer up.

"It's okay," explained Elmer. "I'm fighting a delaying action."

THOUGHTS ON THE WOMEN'S ARMY

Mother is a colonel,
"Sis" wears major's bars;
Auntie is a sergeant,
Grandma wears some stars;
Jennie's a lieutenant—
So are Nell and Liz;
Johnny's quite dejected—
A private's all HE IS!

"Give me 100 U. S. air fighters to 200 Japs and we will lick them every time."—Lieutenant General Brett.

Shucks! Our boys are just practicing now. When they really get down to real fighting they will think it poor sportsmanship to take on less than three at a time.

The government has indicted 114 cheese makers as price fixers. It ought to be easy, thinks P. L. T., to find the holes in this case.

Elmer Twitchell is in a dither over the ban on quarter and pinball machines. "I just about had it figured out when the jackpot was due to drop," he squawked, "and in another couple of months I would have had the right momentum on the marbles all figured out."

DELINQUENT TAX PROBLEM

Every suburban property owner is interested in the movement started last week to find a practical solution to the deplorable tax muddle in Cook county. Most of the delinquent property is in Chicago, where many large buildings have more taxes due on them than they are worth. The people of the suburbs for the most part pay their taxes quite promptly and this means that they are carrying more than their share of the load for there are $400,000,000 of unpaid taxes on Chicago property.

For the first time this problem is being tackled in a sane, practical way. Democrats and Republicans sat down with civic and business leaders, 72 of them altogether, to see what can be done about collecting as much as possible of these delinquent taxes and getting valuable property back onto the rolls of regular taxpayers. This problem has become so involved it can't be solved by politicians who are thinking only of party organization. They have got to work with business men and take a realistic view of a deplorable mess that has to be cleaned up some way.

At this meeting of business, civic and political leaders four committees were appointed and there was a surprising unanimity as to the steps that will have to be taken. Two points in the program call for legislative action. The first is to secure legislation for clearing titles to the property that is so involved and to prevent a recurrence of such condition. The second law would authorize a new land lot ledger system with modern machine bookkeeping and accounting methods which would show at any time the exact tax situation on a piece of property. The other two remedial proposals are 1. the setting up of a practical collection system with a competent personnel trained for this work, and 2. the elimination of accumulated taxes that can never be collected—an estimated $200,000,000.

This is a big job but it has to be done for the situation is getting worse with every passing month. Time won't solve the problem. It calls for a major operation and the sooner it is done the better.

In the group of men selected to sit in on the tax conference were 42 representatives and two state senators, all of them practical business men as well as party leaders in the legislature.

Arthur J. Bidwill of River Forest was one of the two senators invited to take part in the deliberations. This was a recognition of his ability and with full confidence that he would be re-nominated and re-elected. He is looked upon as one of the influential leaders in Springfield who will be needed to help clear up this deplorable situation. This will be another opportunity to render a fine service to the people and to the varied interests in the Seventh Senatorial district. The proposed plan will mean a great deal to the people of Chicago and it will be a real benefit to all taxpayers who live in the suburbs.

DARLING'S FERTILIZER grew contest corn on National and State Husking Fields.

1. NEW WORLD'S HUSKING RECORD (50.96) set on Theodore Schafer farm, LaSalle County, Illinois where both NATIONAL and Illinois State Contests were held on Darling fertilized fields.
2. Ralph Ford (Warren County) won the Indiana State Husking Contest on the Steve Taylor farm where Darling's Soil Builders helped grow the corn.
3. An increased yield of 13 bu. per acre with Darling's Soil Builders on the Iowa State husking field convinced the owner, William Treimer, O'Brien county, that it pays well to use Darling's Fertilizers.
4. The Wisconsin State Husking Contest won by Omar Koopman, was held in LaCrosse county. Another winning field with Darling's Soil Builders. Plan now to get "all out" production from your allotted acreage. The surest and easiest way to increase crop yields, improve quality and build up land fertility, is by fertilizing every acre with DARLING'S SOIL BUILDERS.

Darling's have already felt the effect of priorities and shortages on some of the other products they manufacture, such as glycerine, animal fats and glue. They have had trouble getting certain fertilizer ingredients and hardly know from one day to the next what their position will be for getting out our spring fertilizer.

Definite orders already received are for more than double the tonnage a year ago at this time. They will continue to accept orders so long as they have anything to sell. Times are too uncertain to make any predictions, but our best advice to our customers is to place orders right away, and unless we already have your order, get it to us just as soon as you possibly can. Your definite order booked with us is the best protection we know of in these times.

ARE YOUR Bowels Stubborn?

Then try kindness! First of all you can't expect them to act unless you give them a chance. Most people make sure to get 3 meals a day. But they never think of giving their bowels a regular time (daily) for evacuation.

If you've neglected YOUR bowels until they finally became stubborn and unwilling to act, ask your druggist for ADLERIKA. It is an effective blend of 5 carminatives and 3 laxatives giving DOUBBLE action. Gas is expelled and bowel action follows surprisingly fast. After that, make up your mind to give your bowels 5 or 10 minutes' time at regular hour, daily. Your druggist has ADLERIKA.
